Village Board Approves Flood Control Plan of Engineers

Votes to Accept Plan—Feel Have No Right to Dictate Action on Dam Removal—Rejection of Plan May Be Costly to Community—Other Business.

Village Board members approved the plan of the United States Army Engineers for flood control in Addison. The approval was unanimously voted at the January meeting held in the Village Hall Monday night.

The matter was brought to the attention of the Board by Village Attorney Charles Salerno. He stated that the Army Engineers desired local approval before the work is begun. A letter from the village officials will be sent to the district office in Binghamton.

Trustee Orr said he had heard a lot of opposition to the removal of the dam on the Canisteo River, but he felt this dam is personal property and does not belong to the village or to the state and therefore the Board should not interfere in the matter. Mr. Salerno said if the Board refused to approve the plan the engineers may leave the whole plan and the village would have to finance the completion of the dikes here. He suggested that the board may recommend the leaving of the dam to the engineers when they come to consult with village officials before the project is actually started.

It was pointed out that objections have been heard to changing the river owing to sewage disposal problems. One of the trustees pointed out that according to law it is illegal to dump sewage in the river anyway, so the objections do not hold to law. Mr. Orr said farmers above the village want the dam out and Mr. Salerno said those who went through the flood of 1935 would like to see it removed as it endangers the village by holding back water.

The Board members voted resolutions of respect to be sent from the Village Trustees to the family of the late Fred G. Clark, who has been serving as village trustee for several years. Board members planned to attend the funeral services Tuesday afternoon in a group.

Assessment roll books of Clerk Wilfred M. Miller were approved. New books will be built in the village lockup to conform with recommendations of the State Department of Correction made in August of last year.

Assistant Fire Chief Walter Aldrich asked that the doors on the west side of the fire house be repaired. This will be done. A red light over the door will be repaired to warn motorists against parking in front of the driveway where fire trucks leave the building.

There was some discussion over the work being done on the village hall without the permission or knowledge of the trustee in charge of the building. It is the opinion of the trustees that any work planned on any part of the building should be approved by the custodian of the building before it is done.

Bills audited and ordered paid were: J. C. Barkalow, labor and material for fire siren, $74.57; Lawrence Thomas, labor, 50c; Addison Home Telephone Co., $10.50; Mrs. Mary Hibbard, cleaning jail, $2.50; New York State Electric & Gas Corp., electricity, $293.31; Wilfred Miller for collecting taxes, $150; Steuben Water Works for hydrant rental, $433.75 and for fire hose nozzle, $19. Those present were Mayor Angelo Sisto, Trustees Hubert Orr, Russell Allen and Norman Phelps, Sr., and Village Attorney Charles Salerno.

Help the Finns!

The sympathy of every home-loving person in America is with the honest little band of Finns fighting for their liberty in the forested tableland on the edge of the Arctic Circle. Our sympathy is being expressed in a concrete way with gifts of money to help clothe and feed the homeless persons in that little country who have been driven out by the merciless attack of the Russian Reds. As Americans responded with aid to the stricken Belgians 25 years ago, they are again responding with assistance to the Finns.

Indeed, the plight of the Finns has been brought more near to us by events of the past 20 years, than was the Belgian debacle. About twenty years ago the Finns won their absolute independence for the first time in centuries and this country gave assistance to the struggling nation with a loan that was infinitesimal compared to the sums we lent to other nations in Europe. But small as the sum we lent the Finns, and small though their capacity to pay appeared, that loan was the only one which history up to now has justified. While great nations like Britain, France, Italy, Russia and all the rest have politely declared they were too poor to pay, poor little Finland has punctually discharged each payment on the dot when due. Of all the nations of the world she was the least able to pay, yet among them all she was the only one willing to sacrifice to meet her obligations.

Is there any race of people on this earth for whom we should be more willing to extend a helping hand? The universal opinion regarding this is apparent from the way in which Americans are hurrying to send help to this little country through the committee headed by Herbert Hoover.

The story of this little country is a story of struggle for liberty unexcelled anywhere in the annals of history. The early history of the Finns is shrouded in mystery. We do know they belong to the Mongolian race, being kin to the Lapps and several of the tribes which inhabited northern Asia. That they once were spread over much of central Europe is claimed by ethnologists who state the Hungarians belong to the same race. However, unlike the Lapps and their Asiatic neighbors the Finns turned from a nomadic life to a more settled existence in the strip of land now their home.

They must have been a warlike people for centuries, for the first recorded history we have comes from Sweden. This record shows that about the middle of the 12th century St. Eric, king of Sweden became tired of the piratical raids of the Finns on Sweden and waged a war against them which finally resulted in the subjugation of the little nation. St. Eric forced the Finns to outwardly accept Christianity and for some 700 years the little country remained largely under Swedish control. However, considerable freedom of government in internal affairs was allowed by the Swedes and the two people came to mutually respect each other and intermarried to a certain extent.

During much of this time Russia and Sweden were at war and finally a peace was signed in 1801 which deeded all of Finland to the Russians, who turned the land into a duchy with the Czar naming himself as grand duke. Although the Finns secured a measure of self-government from the Czar during the next hundred years they greatly preferred their old masters the Swedes and were quick to strike for complete freedom when the Bolsheviks came into power. By an odd circumstance aid was given the Finns by the Germans during the World War, the latter planning to make the little country a province, a plan frustrated by the treaty of peace which finally established complete freedom for Finland for the first time in nearly 800 years.

Now, after a brief taste of complete liberty this little nation of less than four million people is again forced to defend itself. With thousands of these brave people made homeless and starving by this new attack from without, can we, any of us fail to extend a little assistance along with our hopes for the success of our only honest debtors?

THE ONLY WAY

A reader addresses the following lines to the editor:

"The Advertiser would immensely oblige many of its readers if it could tell us why the state and county tax notices being sent out now, show taxes of something like $5 more this time per $1,000 valuation than ever before."

There are several answers to that question and none of them have any element of cheer. One of the reasons taxpayers are having to dig deeper than ever this year to pay their taxes is due to the ever increasing relief burden. The more people the taxpayers have to take care of the more taxes will continue to mount and unless a halt is called somewhere the taxpayers will have to go on relief to get something to live on.

Another cause for the big jump this year is the fact the county budget went badly into the red the past year and we are having to make that up. Withdrawal of part of the state aid for highways by the legislature last year also is being reflected in higher real estate taxes this month. Mounting demands of the bureaucratic government we have seen built up in Albany is another reason, for even though little if any of this tax goes to the state, officials of the state are continually demanding the county units of government to spend thousands of dollars for every new frill and fancy conceived in Albany.

Doubtless we shall see this burden of taxation laid in ever thickening layers upon our backs until the day finally comes when Mr. and Mrs. Taxpayer unite in a great wave of protest which shall take form in a real taxpayers' strike. If a majority of the taxpayers in the state would refuse to pay their taxes, then we would see a real wave of economy go into effect as the bureaucrats rush to find ways of cutting expenses to the bone before they are all thrown out of office. But until the men and women who pays the bills get up on their hind legs and demand drastic cuts in government costs, there will be no consistent reduction in taxes.

"CRIME" DOESN'T PAY

The "left wing" seems to be largely dominating the consumer advisory business. There are a number of services whose ostensible purpose is to scientifically compare competitive products, and to advise the reader which are good, bad or indifferent. Some of them, at least, are apparently operated by people whose viewpoint is heavily colored by radical social prejudice. These services often go to ridiculous extremes in denouncing nationally known articles produced and sold by reputable manufacturers and distributors.

The upshot is that such services are defeating their own purposes. The American consumer isn't stupid. He knows that no product can long sell by virtue of advertising alone—if it is to survive, it has to be good. And he knows too that under the pressure of the free competitive system, both manufacturers and retail distributors are bending every effort to giving the consumer the best service. A "gypped" consumer soon learns to buy another product and patronize another store.

A reader of some of the consumer advisory services could come logically to the opinion that we Americans are the worst fed, worst clothed and worst served people in the world. The exact opposite, of course, is true. And businesses which attempt to exploit and cheat the public don't last long.

BANKS AND BORROWERS

The old argument that the country's banks are no longer able to adequately satisfy the nation's credit needs, and that, as a result, there must be more government-sponsored credit, has fallen on evil days. For today's evidence overwhelmingly proves that the banks, as a whole, are doing a superb job in serving legitimate borrowers.

A survey made by the American Bankers Association covers the experience of 6,000 commercial banks, (41 per cent of all banks in the country) during the first half of 1939. These banks made almost 5,750,000 new loans during that period, for a total of more than $10,000,000,000. They renewed more than 5,600,000 old loans, for a total of better than $7,618,000,000. They made 127,000 mortgage loans, totaling over $412,000,000.

This adds up to 11,500,000 credit extensions—for a grand total of more than $18,114,000,000. And that money was loaned by less than half of the country's banks. If the remaining banks had a similar experience, and there is every reason to believe they did, total loans in the six-month period reached the astronomical figure of approximately $45,000,000,000—an amount which exceeds our present record breaking national debt.

PREVENT FIRE

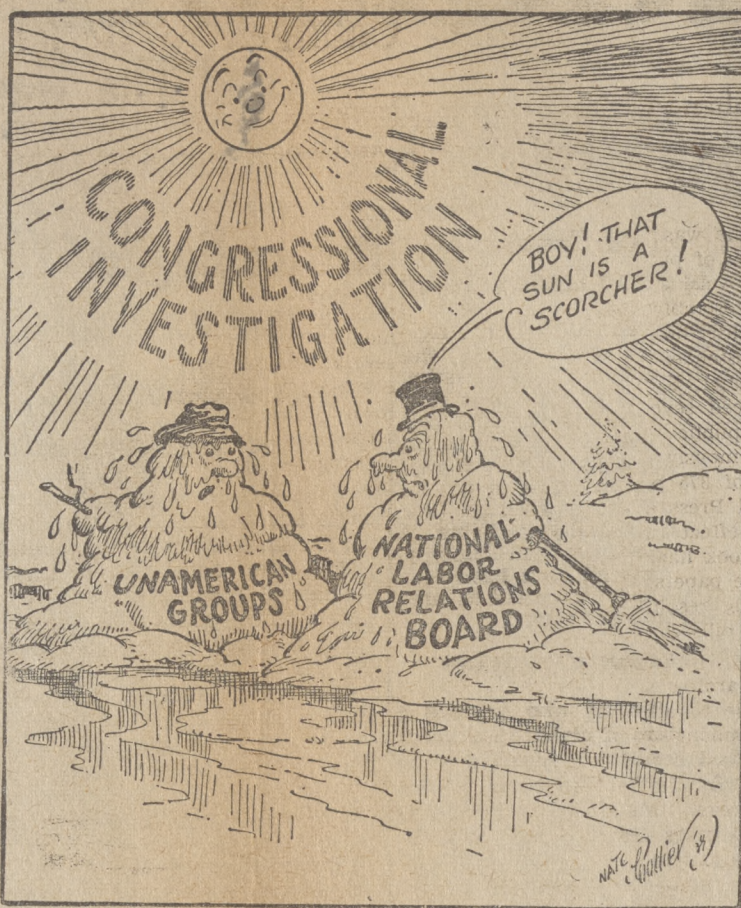

At this time of year every family in this place should redouble their vigilance against fire. For during this season of bitter cold weather there is greater danger of fires starting from heating plants than at any other time of year.

This fact is logical because with outdoor temperatures hovering around the zero mark much of the time everyone is trying to keep their house comfortable. And keeping many houses comfortable in zero weather often requires crowding the heating plant beyond its capacity. This results in overheated chimneys, and when an overheated chimney is defective a damaging fire may result. In severe weather auxiliary stoves are often started, bringing into use chimneys that are untested for long periods. Precautions should be taken to inspect all outlets of little used chimneys to be certain a way is not left open for starting a fire, not in the stove.

People who burn green wood should be especially careful at this time of year, for chimneys fill with creosote, which in turn will "burn out" sometimes overheating walls and causing a conflagration. Measures can be taken to remove this creosote before it becomes a potential fire hazard.

No one wants to be burned out of house and home at any time. But this is particularly true in the winter when a family is too frequently trapped in a burning house, or driven into the bitter cold in their night clothes which is always an invitation to sickness and death. A few precautions taken before anything happens will nearly always prevent the fire which can be a major disaster to any family.

THE HEAT IS ON

How, What and Why

This paper has arranged with the Office of Information of the New York State College of Agriculture and Home Economics to answer questions about problems of farm and home. If you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and mention the name of this paper, you will receive a direct reply to your query from the editors. Do not ask more than one question in one letter or on one post card. Ask as many questions as you like, but make each one a separate communication.

Wants Goats

C. E. writes: "I intend to start raising goats in the spring. Where can I get either purebred Saanen or Toggenburg kids, both bucks and does? What do they cost?"

Professor S. A. Aspell of the animal husbandry department answers: "For purebred goats of moderate milking ability, the general price at present would be about five dollars for every pound of milk the goat will give at her maximum daily yield."

"For goats that give more than seven or eight pounds a day, the price will be higher because of their value as breeders. For information on where to buy goats, write to the secretary of your nearest dairy-goat society. A list of addresses of those in New York State is given in a Cornell bulletin which has been sent to you."

Scientific Method?

P. S. asks: "Is there any scientific method of locating wells or springs?"

Professor C. N. Turner of the agricultural engineering department answers: "There is no scientific method of locating wells or springs. The experience of neighbors in the immediate vicinity is the best guide as to the type of well suited to a locality."

"Supplies of spring water are indicated by wet areas; they need careful development. The most dependable springs are those that come from a deep source. One or more lines of the drain laid in the wet soil across the slope may help to collect additional water. The catch basin or reservoir for the spring should be lower than the source of the water, or it may force the water to take another course."

"Wells dug by hand and laid up with stone are often shallow and may not penetrate the water table during dry seasons. Making these wells a few feet deeper will often increase their storage capacity and increase the supply. If the dug well has failed this year, do not condemn it because it may prove adequate during periods of normal rainfall."

"Drilled wells are usually the last resort when no other source of water can be found. They are often a serious gamble."

Boy Scout Indoor Rally Jan. 12

Field Executive Donald A. Paul of Corning was in this district during the past week to complete the local arrangements for the rally of all Boy Scout Troops to be held in the Corning Free Academy, Corning, N. Y., January 12, 1940.

This is the first indoor rally of the Scouts and Troops in this district this season. It is expected that a great many Troop officials and friends and parents will attend. Every consideration is being taken to insure adequate seating for the guests of the boys.

The program is on a standard rather than competitive basis in the sense that efficiency and accuracy are to be attained rather than speed. The winners of the various events will not know the night of the rally of their next meeting following the rally.

The program as announced by District Commissioner Reynolds will include assembly of all Troops at 7:30 P. M. sharp, each Troop will be in patrol formation, front and rear rank, with their respective Troop Committees centered behind the Troop. Following this an inspection will take place and the points to be judged will be: Neatness of Appearance, Cleanliness of person, and the use of the Uniform. This event will be judged by the Scoutmasters accompanied by the Commissioners. Attendance will be another part of the rally and will be based on the number of boys enrolled as of January 1st, 1940. Other events will include: Knot tying, signaling, first aid, compass, judging and a Troop Nature Exhibit.

The great climax of the evening will come when the Troops gather together for the Court of Honor which will include moving from one state to the next higher stage. Recognition will be made of all Scouts who have advanced since January 1st, 1939.

The recognition of all Troops qualifying for the Silver Bar Award will also be made at this time. The closing ceremony will be simple yet very impressive and the Scouts and Scouters and friends will go their way with a deeper appreciation in their hearts for the opportunity of being an American Citizen and for having the right to live in the "Land of the free and the Home of the Brave."

Fruit, Flowers, Garden

Preparing for Spring

Arthur J. Pratt
 A good winter job for home vegetable gardeners is to build a hotbed so that the garden can be started early next spring with healthy and vigorous plants of a known or satisfactory variety.

Hotbeds may be built of old materials, such as second-hand lumber and discarded window sash, but the standard hotbeds are more satisfactory. Glass substitutes may be used temporarily, as they are easy to handle and usually cost less than glass, but glass is preferred because it allows more light to pass even though it stops ultra-violet light. Ultra-violet light is not necessary for plant growing.

Gardeners may also build hotbeds for growing plants. Now is a good time, also, to draw to scale on a large sheet of wrapping paper a plan of the garden for next spring. It will save time then.

Cornell bulletin E-344, entitled "The Home Garden", has illustrations that show how to build hotbeds and coldframes, or for more complete information write to the Department of Vegetable Crops, New York State College of Agriculture, Ithaca, N. Y. for the mimeographed bulletin on "Coldframes, Hotbeds and Sash-Houses". Both are free to New York state residents.

Around Our House

When unexpected guests arrive, home canned meats prove an especially useful addition to the emergency shelf. A few of the different ways in which home canned meat may be used are suggested by the New York State College of Home Economics:

Meat Pies—Meat pies may have one or two crusts made of biscuit dough, pie crust or mashed potato. If biscuit dough or potato is used, a top crust only is most often used. This may be a complete covering with a few holes for steam to escape, or cut-out biscuits may be placed over the top of the filling. Some cooks put a "crown" of biscuit dough around the inside of the casserole, and then put biscuits over the filling.

Fillings of meat pies may be made with one meat or a combination of meats, and may or may not contain vegetables. With canned meat, the vegetables used should be precooked and freshly cooked; if small they may be left whole, otherwise they should be cut into small pieces. Potatoes, carrots, onions, tomatoes, peppers, celery and any other vegetables may be used.

The liquid is usually meat stock, though milk can be used; it should be thickened before it is put into the casserole (or other baking dish), and all ingredients should be thoroughly heated before the top crust is put on. The baking period is just long enough to bake the crust. An extra dish of the filling sauce may be served with the pie at the table.

Meat Roast—An imitation "veal roast" may be prepared by placing canned veal in an open pan in a hot oven. When it is browned, pour over it some freshly coarsened cream. Reduce the oven temperature and baste the meat with the liquid in the bottom of the pan. A "pinch" or two of dry grated cheese may be added for flavor.

Meat Cakes—Meat cakes are delicious with tomato or horseradish sauce, and meat-vegetable loaf, meat-stuffed vegetables, and meat sandwiches are other ways to prepare and serve home-canned meat.

Over 170 Died
Of Cancers in
Steuben in 1938

Cancer took the lives of 171 persons during the year of 1938 in Steuben County, according to Dr. John A. Conway, District State Health Officer, who today made an appeal for increased public interest and effort toward combating this disease.

"It is important to realize that this means that there are approximately the same number of people going about their daily activities in Steuben County today, who have early curable cancer and don't know it," said Dr. John A. Conway. "Experience has shown that the average person who develops cancer waits from six months to a year before consulting a physician. The reason is that the symptoms of early curable cancer are practically always so mild that they do not seem to require medical attention. It is precisely during this period, however, that cancer can be diagnosed and most readily cured."

"These early symptoms of cancer may appear as any slight disturbance of the normal body functions. Examples are: Indigestion and stomach discomfort which lasts longer than two weeks; bleeding or discharge from any body cavity; a lump in the breast or elsewhere in the body; continued hoarseness; difficulty in swallowing; a sore or ulcer which fails to heal. Pain is usually absent during the early stages of cancer. Although none of the symptoms mentioned are necessarily indicative of cancer, each must be investigated promptly as soon as noticed, the mere possibility of cancer constitutes an emergency and calls for immediate attention. Early discovery means early recovery."

Welfare Commissioner Hardenbrook Introduces Changes in Relief

Steuben County Official Proposes Changes in State Laws to Benefit County and Local Communities in Administering Relief.

There was a meeting of commissioners of public welfare, officers of the towns, supervisors, members of the Assembly and Senate, held in Syracuse on January 5. At that time Steuben County Welfare Commissioner, E. Ray Hardenbrook, introduced several resolutions affecting public welfare. These were unanimously passed by the convention of 375 persons, and the Associated Press article was released to that effect. Since then Mr. Hardenbrook has been asked by several of the papers as to just what these various resolutions were. He lists these bills for public information:

Civil Service

Regarding the extension of Civil Service to all subdivisions of state government Mr. Hardenbrook's resolution asked that the Legislature be petitioned that if such extension is made each county be allowed to have a local Civil Service Commissioner, rather than be directed under the State Civil Service Commission.

State School Girls

A resolution requesting the Legislature to amend the state law as it applies to state schools for mentally defective persons, to the extent that a girl committed to such state school and paroled by them and who becomes pregnant while under parole or custody of the institution shall be cared for during her confinement and the future care of her child shall be a state charge rather than a charge referable to the county from which she was committed.

Work Relief

A resolution asking an amendment to the Public Welfare Law favoring a permissive plan for each locality to provide work-for-relief. This means that when an able bodied person applies for an order of relief they can be assigned to a local work program at prevailing rate of wage, to work out the amount of the order given.

Advance Grants

A resolution asking for advance grants to the localities, for public relief, of the 40 per cent which is now reimbursed following expenditures; this to apply only to home relief. Precedent has been established in many other departments, such as Lowman Act moneys, and highway departments, etc.

Delinquent Girls

Resolution asking that the age for admission to Hudson State Training School for girls be increased from 16 to 18 years of age; the reason for this request raising the age to 18 is that a majority of the girls brought in for delinquency are past 16 and have not reached their 18th birthday. If it is necessary to commit them to some institution under present regulations they must be sent to Westfield State Prison, and it is our belief that they should not be sent to prison, but to a training school.

Medical Care

A resolution requesting the Legislature to amend the Public Welfare Law and thereby return the authorization for medical care and the administration of the medical program to the counties and cities of the state, rather than a detailed program of administration from the state department, as is the present setup.

State Aid

Resolution requesting the Legislature to amend the Public Welfare Law removing the clause giving the state department the power to withhold reimbursement to localities, unless deliberate fraud is indicated on the part of the locality as shown by audit of the claim.

Abandonment

Resolution to amend the Penal Law so that persons on relief who abandon their families can be prosecuted the same as any individual who abandons his family, who is not on relief.

Non-Settled Cases

A resolution to amend the Public Welfare Law so that towns may administer relief to non-settled cases exactly the same as they administer relief to persons residing in their locality and having a settlement.

Fred Clark Died After Long Illness

Fred G. Clark is dead! These words were heard throughout the village Saturday night and Sunday. And thus ended the career of one of the most active men in Addison, a man interested in church, community and home and of wide interests outside those spheres.

Fred Clark was born June 11, 1873 in Sugar Grove, Pa. His parents were the late Job and Mary Pilling Clark. His early education was received in that vicinity and upon completion of his schooling he married Miss Carry B. Mead of Warren, Pa., on October 4, 1894, and they have lived and worked together throughout the 46 years and in the past few years have weathered some difficult times together.

After their marriage they went to New York, where Mr. Clark became employed in the office of the Davis Inkstand Company, a concern founded by a brother in law of Mr. Clark's. They remained there several years and then went to Tytoon, Pa., and then to Williamsport, Pa., where Mr. Clark was special agent for the National Union Fire Insurance Company of Pittsburgh. He held this position for 16 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark and family then moved to Canisteo where he became manager for the Superior Register Company for several years. They then came to Addison in 1915 and have since lived here and taken an active part in affairs of this village. The local interests of the late Fred Clark were purchased and operated until a few months ago, when owing to ill health the business was sold to Harold B. Smith.

Mr. Clark was local representative for the Cities Service gas and oil company for several years and at one time served the southern tier as a distributor. Throughout these years he was assisted by Mr. Clark as office manager.

Mr. Clark was an organizer and first president of the Advertising Club of Addison, and active in its affairs until his illness of a year ago. He was also a charter member of and vice president of the Addison Credit Association, a member of Addison Lodge of Masons, of the Steuben County Masonic Past Master's Association, member of Addison Grange and of the Welles Hose Company.

In politics Mr. Clark was Republican and was serving the village as trustee when stricken. Throughout the years he has been active in the affairs of the party both in Addison and in Steuben County.

Mr. Clark was a staunch Episcopalian and member of the Church of the Redeemer in Addison. He has been a member of the vestry for several years and served both as junior and senior warden at various times, holding the latter position since the death of the late Delmar Darrin.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon, January 9, 1940, from the late home on Maple street and at 2 o'clock from the Church of the Redeemer with the Rev. Russell O. Kirsch as officiating clergyman. A Masonic service was held at the grave in Addison Rural Cemetery.

Mr. Clark leaves his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Cornelius Murphy of Huntington, L. I. and Mrs. Henry G. Hurlbut of Hammondspoint, a brother, Alden Clark of Toronto, Canada and two nieces of Toronto, Mrs. Owen MacGillivuddy and Mrs. Edward Peters and a nephew A. W. Davis of New York, also four grand children, all of Hammondspoint, Hugh, Donald, David and Martha Ann Hurlbut.

Bearers at the funeral were: Dewitt Stewart of Towlesville was in this place Monday.

Mrs. Maud Halpin of Savona visited her sister, Mrs. Lee Cornell and family Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldred Walrath of Woodhull visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Walrath recently.

There will be an oyster supper and apron sale at the North Jasper Grange Hall, Friday evening, January 12, sponsored by the M. T. Church.

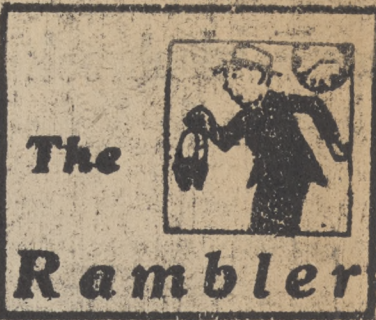

Some of the children in this district are having measles.

Mrs. Herb Thompson is seriously ill and has been taken to St. James Hospital in Hornell.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Stuart entertained Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Freer and son Dicky, Mr. and Mrs. Elwyn Norris and mother, Mrs. Bessie Norris of Wellsville recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Mulligan of Wilkes Barre, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Mulligan and son Junior of Canisteo, Mrs. Mabel Mulligan and nephew, Harold Vanhooser of Dansville and Charles Dillon of Hornell called at the Lee Cornell home Sunday to see Joe Mulligan who is seriously ill.

Some food superstitions that have been scientifically disproved are that milk and fish should not be eaten at the same meal; a large amount of meat is necessary for heavy physical work; and water should not be drunk at meals.

The Rambler

The Genesee Valley Fox hunters will have nothing on the village of Addison. The fox will be the object of an extended hunt to be held Sunday by the Fish and Game Club members and any others who care to join. I'm wondering how many of the foxes will not eat supper home Sunday night when this crew gets going.

An exchange item recently printed in this paper spoke of the ministers of a community pleading with organizations not to meet on church prayer night in the middle of the week. Ministers here do not have to do that for there seems to be an understanding when arranging affairs that Wednesday night is reserved for church services. However, many of those who recognize the night do not take advantage of it, and attend mid-week church services.

Thank you, Mr. Wade for your thoughtfulness in sending me those fine calendars. The religious calendar is one of the finest I have seen and most complete.

My thanks also to the correspondent who sent in the suggestion for putting baking powder in mashed potatoes to make them fluffier. It has been tried and found successful in the Rambler household. Again thank you.

The Village Board members took the bull by the horns and in spite of criticisms about the village voted to approve the Army Engineers flood control project, in full view of the dam which is now being held with the engineers before the work begins, a suggestion to keep the dam may be effective.

It is several years since this vicinity has known such a lengthy cold snap and especially one with so little snow. Thermometer has been averaging 20 above for several days, about 10 I guess, and sometimes has dropped way below that.

To the members of the families of Mrs. Lynn Taylor, Fred Clark and William Pepper our prayers and condolences, the first two in the deaths of their beloved ones and to the last named in the serious illness of their daughter Geraldine.

Trouble never seems to come singly to some people and one wonders why there should be such suffering on earth until one realizes that there has always been suffering and even the Great Man of All Time suffered on earth for his fellow men. It is an earthly cross and I sincerely hope in the case of the deceased it will mean heavenly glory without pain.

Christmas time I went home and ran into a series of snow storms and wind storms which were mighty uncomfortable. And when I came back I was telling about them here. So, on my way so, some people going to Syracuse used caution and all that and discovered bare roads and no wind. I felt sort of foolish. But then over the past week-end ran into the same thing again, drifts of snow and wind, so I still stick to my story. There is plenty of snow up state.

Have you made any New Year's resolutions? I did not. I can remember the time when it was customary for men to give up smoking and women to give up candy. The good resolves lasted 10-15-20 days and then were as ten in the rush of the new year's activities.

I don't know about you, but it seems to me that this New Year's was quieter than many in the past. I was not in Addison to know what took place here, but from talks with various people, there did not seem to be as many drunks around and as many noisy annoyers as usual.

So much is being written about the dam being taken out that we are unable to print all the material at hand. Writers have been permitted the use of the news columns as often as desired, and we have tried to have as many writers represented as possible.

Mr. Clark and Eugene Wade were both men of trying to "give" me a good time. They both had in my usual apartment-mindfulness I laid a nickel on the counter for her and then put it back in my pocket.

The little Rambler has been sick for the first time in his 22 months of life on this earth. And I'm now realizing what my parents must have gone through when I was a baby.

Mrs. Lynn Taylor This Week Died of Stroke Sunday Night

This community was shocked and saddened by the news Sunday night of the death of Mrs. Lynn A. Taylor. It was not known that she was ill, she had been about her usual duties about Saturday, and Sunday morning suffered a stroke and died which she failed to fully realize her death came at 6:30 P. M. Sunday, January 7, 1940.

Mrs. Taylor was born Janet Lublin on December 28, 1885 in the city of Albany. She received her early schooling in that community and in Rochester and Boston before coming to Addison. She attended Addison grade and high school, graduating from the high school with the class of 1904.

In 1905 she became the bride of Lynn A. Taylor and they have since made their home in this village. She has taken an active part in village affairs, mostly in connection with civic projects.

Three children were born to her, all of whom achieved honors in high school. She maintained her interest in the school throughout the years and was an ardent advocate of and for education.

In addition Mrs. Taylor was interested in the Girl Scout movement and served as chairman of the Girl Scout Council here as well as member of the council for several years. During her administration the Girl Scout movement made great strides in Addison.

Mrs. Taylor was also an active member of the Women's Civic Society, being one of its charter members and active committee members.

She took an active part in the affairs of the Episcopal Church in Addison of which she was a devout member.

Many young people of the village who have come under the influence of her gracious personality are deeply grieved at her passing.

The death of Mrs. Taylor removes from this community a kind and loving wife and mother and an interested community worker and her many friends express sincere condolences to the members of the family, the husband, Lynn A. Taylor, a son Curtis and daughter Janet. She also leaves two aunts, Mrs. F. S. Smedley a member of the Taylor household and Miss Bertha Curtis of Los Angeles, Calif. A brother, Curtis Patterson, also survives her.

Funeral services were held Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock from the home, Front Street and burial was in Addison Rural Cemetery. The Rev. Russell O. Kirsch of the Church of the Redeemer officiated at prayer services in the home.

Youngster and sick. The little tots are so helpless that you hardly know what to do and they cannot make known their sickness, which sort of complicates things. He is coming along fine, thanks to the ministrations of his mother.

How many of your New Year resolutions are still intact?

Did you ever have one of those days when everything seems to go wrong and nothing you do turns out right? I had one this week and believe me, it was not pleasant and got me into a lot of trouble. Most of it could have been avoided probably if I had not felt sort of "laxed".

That's All,
THE RAMBLER

1 cup sliced onions
1/2 cup water
3 cups tomatoes
2 teaspoons salt

Elkland and Knights Play Three Overtime Periods and Quit at 18 All

Good defensive playing on part of both teams gives fans a good game—Root is leading scorer with 11 points for the home team.

The Addison Knights and the Elkland High squad battled to an 18 tie here Tuesday night and then fought three overtime periods with-out either team scoring and the game was finally called at that score. This makes the fifth game for the Knights this year and the total scores marking defeat or victory have not counted over five for all five games. And Tuesday's game also marked the fourth tie game for the Elkland squad this season in 10 starts.

A large delegation of Elklandites accompanied their team and cheered loud and long for the proteges of Clark Wood, coach of the visitors. Root led the scoring with 11 points for Addison of which four field baskets were scored. And the visitors were leading 18 to 16 with 10 seconds to play when Root got the ball on a rebound from his own backboard, turned and tossed the ball over his head on a walkaway shot and it cleared the basket so well that there was hardly a ripple in the cords. Both teams were playing the good defensive ball throughout the game and Elkland only scored once under the basket, being called to take pot shots from side and center court.

Fields and Matis led the scoring for the visitors with six points and seven points each. There were eight fouls called on Elkland and six on Addison and one additional foul for either team would have been victory. Both teams missed many scoring opportunities from the floor in their anxiety.

Knights Varsity Defeat H'port

The two and one point margins of victory are proving a rule rather than an exception with the Addison Knights for in three games they won by a margin of four points and lost by the same margin. Hammondport went down to defeat to the tune of 19 to 17 in a thrilling battle equal to the best the team has had this year. In a garrison thriller the Junior Varsity squad lost out 26 to 25, with the bombardment being done by the towering Cornish, who scored 15 points for the winners. He looked like the Giant among the Lilliputians for the Addison Jayvees are about his size.

Dick Gladstone had "a night on" and shot four field goals and three fouls. It seemed he could not miss and the other members of the squad also realized he was "in the groove" and passed him the ball as often as possible. Every man on the second squad scored a field goal. In the varsity game no one was an outstanding scorer for either team. Thomson with two field goals and two fouls for six points led the scoring field. Root was in second place with two field goals and a foul for five points.

Addison took the lead in the opening stanza and led at the quarter mark four to one. The victors crept up to within two points at the halfway mark and were trailing eight to six. Addison really opened in the third and held the visitors to a lone field goal while scoring eight points at the close of that period.

Arkport plays in the Addison High School Tuesday night. This promises to be another close margin game, but from present indications the Knights should be top-side team when the final whistle blows.

Addison Aggies Defeat Elkland Freshmen, 10-9

The Addison Aggies playing without their mainstay, Ernest Matthews, were hard pressed to defeat a husky squad of freshmen from Elkland Tuesday night by a 10-9 score. Ellison opened the scoring for Addison by sinking two push shots in rapid order, but baskets by K. Newberry and Blakeley and a foul by Spencer put the visitors in front at the end of the first quarter. The Aggies went into the lead at the half as Hall scored.

In the second half the Aggies changed to a man for man defense, and with both teams using this type of defense held balls were very prevalent and thus the scoring was cut down.

CHAPTER CHATTER

The monthly meeting of the teachers of agriculture was held in Canisteo Monday night. Wayne Crandall, teacher at Canisteo, was host to twelve teachers of agriculture and W. J. Weaver, of the Agricultural Education Bureau at Albany. After a dinner which was served by the homemaking girls, a short business meeting was held with Leonard Palmer of Corning, Northside, president of the group, in charge.

The main topic discussed by the speaker concerned the requirements of the State Department of Education for the program of supervised practice of boys who do not have extensive farm operations at home. The speaker brought out the fact that in the junior and senior years of these boys it would be better for them to work on a well-rounded farm where a good farm business was being carried out rather than attempt to develop on a larger scale what would be impossible.

All the reports on past business were given by Frank Finnerty of Addison and Leonard Bullock of Avoca.

All members of all classes in agriculture have been taking farm inventories the past two weeks. Everyone taking agriculture is required to take an inventory on his home farm provided its business is large enough or if the enterprise is too small, to take an inventory on a relative or neighbor's farm.

In addition to this inventory an intensive study of the farm business is made. This includes getting labor income, production of all crops and annual enterprises, all receipts for the year, all expenses for the year; making of a credit statement and many other items concerning a farm business.

In the third and fourth year of agriculture this study is carried further to include percent of capital invested in land, buildings, equipment and livestock, number of years it takes receipts to equal capital, pounds of milk produced per man, etc.

The regular monthly meeting of the out-of-school group was held in the agricultural rooms Monday evening with 20 members present. John Coleman, president, was in charge of the group while Thomas Kane acted as secretary in place of Harold Martin who was absent.

It was voted by the members to have refreshments at the next meeting and Paul Kane and Stanley Jimmerson were appointed on that committee.

It was also voted to have meetings every two weeks instead of monthly.

The principal discussion of the evening was on the raising of calves and heifers. Clifton Rounds, who has charge of Judge Smith's purebred Ayrshire herd, gave an interesting talk on the subject of raising dairy calves and heifers. He stressed the fact that large cows produce more milk, hence all should try to grow their cows large. He also emphasized the fact the fore-milk, which is low in butterfat content, can be used very successfully to raise calves. The speaker stated that a large percentage of calf troubles are caused by keeping the calves in dark, damp, unsanitary pens and feeding them in dirty

Mr. and Mrs. Robie Head made business trip to Hornell Saturday. Carlton Baker visited Rhea Bennett Sunday.

The fact was stressed that hay should be fed in a rack rather than on the floor. The limited whole milk dry calf starter was stated to be the most effective way of raising calves for those who sell fluid milk.

Many other points were brought out by the speaker concerning the condition of dry cows, disease prevention of the new-born calf, amounts of grain, milk and hay necessary to raise a calf, etc.

After the meeting a number of questions were asked concerning this subject. Much interest was evidenced by all members present.

Sports fans are pleased over the action taken by the Yankees last week in announcing that Lou Gehrig, long time Yankee player will be the only Yankee player ever to wear the Number 4. It will never be issued to another player on the team. Also Lou will have his number 4 locker for as long as he lives. Another tribute paid to him is in the fact that he is considered on the voluntary retired list of the Yankees so is still a member of the team, while holding down the job as parole commissioner in New York. It will be remembered that Lou was forced to retire from the game last year through paralysis after establishing a record of playing in over 2300 consecutive games.

Added Allowance of $30 Available in 1940 For Tree Planting

Under a new plan in 1940 Agricultural Conservation Program, a separate allot will be available for planting trees. Any landowner whose land can be classified as a farm can earn an extra thirty dollars by planting forest trees at the rate of 1000 trees to the acre.

This reforestation allowance is made regardless of the size of the soil building allowance for the farm, says Leon Dennis, chairman of the Steuben County Committee. If no trees are planted, none of the $30 can be added to or used for payments for other soil building projects. With the payment of $7.50 an acre for reforestation, four acres can be planted for this sum.

New Tree Offered — Trees available this year include all of the species offered in past years, except balsam fir for which a new one, Douglas fir, is substituted. This should be planted on well drained loams and only on north slopes.

Order blanks for trees may be had from the Farm Bureau office or the local supervisors of the Agricultural Conservation Program. Payment may be deferred until a few days before the trees are shipped in April or early May. Transplants cost from three to four dollars and seedlings two dollars a thousand.

The recommendation is to order trees early, since late comers have little choice of planting stock, if any is left. Nearly every farm has four or five acres too steep to cultivate, too poor to plant to crops, or too far from the farmstead to handle economically. These acres should be planted to trees.

Mansfield—Attired in overalls and carrying lollypops, the Alumni basketball team was defeated by the varsity 28 to 21.

Potato and Vegetable Growers Oppose Distribution Taxes

Utica, New York—The New York State Vegetable Growers' Association and the Empire State Potato Club, representing more than 60,000 New York agriculturists, took action in their annual convention here today, January 5, 1940, against special chain store taxes and all similar legislation "curtailing" the farmer's channels of distribution.

The potato growers' organization, in its resolutions, condemned "all efforts to restrict punitive and discriminatory forms of taxation designed to affect chain stores", and believe that "efficiency distribution is fundamental to the best interests of producers and consumers".

Taking a parallel stand, the Vegetable Growers' Association pointed to the harmful affects, from the standpoint of producers, of any form of taxation "to cripple and even prohibit certain systems of distribution."

Officials of the two organizations said that they had been informed that similar action had been taken today by various groups holding conventions in connection with the Massachusetts Union Agriculture Meeting in Worcester. Among these groups, they said, was the American Pomological Society, representing more than thirty state and regional apple growers' associations; the Massachusetts State Farm Bureau Federation and the Massachusetts Fruit Growers' Association.

The New York and Massachusetts' expressions of farm opinion on chain store taxes follows the adoption, during the past month, of similar resolutions by the National Grange, the American Farm Bureau Federation and fifteen state and regional farm groups in other sections of the country.

Knoxville—The Livestock Market here will open January 16.

Bath—A Twelfth Night blaze of Christmas trees was held here last Saturday night under the auspices of the Girl Scouts.
